

Nestled amidst the picturesque landscape where the Colorado and Pedernales Rivers converge, lies Loraloma – the most amenitized private community in Texas. It will sit on the private, waterfront confines of the expansive 2,200-acre Thomas Ranch masterplan. Loraloma will feature an exquisite array of modern residences, including two- to five-bedroom turnkey cottages, villas, estates, and customizable homesites. The lifestyle at the private community will foster a profound connection with the surroundings, offering an array of activities such as golf, fitness, wellness, culinary arts, and nature-based experiences. Beyond its stunning setting and luxurious offerings, what truly distinguishes Loraloma is its innovative approach to the sales experience.

Gone are the days of traditional real estate transactions; Loraloma seeks to revolutionize the way people buy homes by prioritizing personalized service and tailor-made experiences for each potential resident. Enter Saddlebrook, a microcosm of the community itself. Built with the same ethos of connecting people with the land and creating nature-based experiences, the sales center offers prospective buyers a taste of what life at Loraloma truly entails.

Upon stepping foot into Saddlebrook, visitors are immediately immersed in the essence of Loraloma. The center boasts a ranch complete with a seven-stall barn, two horses, five paddocks, and a sprawling 26,000 square foot riding arena. Here, buyers can saddle up and explore the breathtaking scenery of their future home on horseback, weaving through the home sites and amenities that define Loraloma's charm – from the cliffside and river clubhouses to the lush fairways of the upcoming David McLay-Kidd designed golf course.

But the experience doesn't end there. For those looking to fully immerse themselves in the Loraloma lifestyle, Saddlebrook offers the opportunity to spend a night under the Hill Country skies in one of the owner cottages on-site. Surrounded by the quiet serenity of uninterrupted land, just an hour outside the bustling city of Austin, buyers can truly envision themselves living amidst the natural beauty that defines Loraloma. And for golf enthusiasts eager to test out their swing, Saddlebrook features The Quad – a “to-scale” putting course offering a preview of the excitement to come with the unveiling of the 18-hole championship course in 2025. Designed by renowned architect David McLay-Kidd, this will be his first venture into the Southern U.S., making it a highly anticipated addition to the community.

But perhaps what makes the sales experience at Loraloma truly special is its ability to capture the warm nostalgia that draws so many to Texas. From the rugged landscapes to the spirit of adventure that permeates every corner, Loraloma offers more than just a place to live – it offers a lifestyle rooted in the rich traditions of the Lone Star State.

So, if you're in search of more than just a home – if you're seeking a true connection to the land and a community that embraces the spirit of Texas living – look no further than Loraloma. Come experience the future of Western luxury for yourself at Saddlebrook, where the journey to your dream home begins.
